

SSB. Callsign: GDWJ

The ship has a shortwave radio, and we'll practically always be able to reach radio stations ashore. However making phonecalls from the ship to shore is quite expensive. Calling other ships is free of charge. The radio has "marine-bands". When the ship is away from land you can use the e mail adress GDWJ followed by @sailmail.com Tell your family not to resend old messages, as the system is working VERY slow. It is free of charge.

The ship has also "spot messenger" to send positions to family (free).

Satellitradio; in the Caribien: 00871 764 025 676 Satellitradio out of order for the time being !

in the Pacific Ocean: 00874 764 025 676

You can always use the satellite radio to make calls from and to the ship. (3 US $/min). Although the radio is normally only switched on while we're at sea.
